

Ruchi Mishra Fitzgerald, MD

Ruchi Fitzgerald, MD is the current addiction medicine fellow at Rush University in Chicago, IL. She graduated from the University of Michigan Medical School in 2004 and completed her family medicine training at the Montana Family Medicine Residency in Billings, Montana. After working as a family medicine community faculty physician in Billings, she worked for WellVia Solutions and had a full-time telemedicine practice after her family relocated to Denver, Colorado. Ruchi was eager to pursue an addiction medicine fellowship as the opioid overdose public health crisis was emerging.